A SERIES IN HALACHA LIVING A "TORAH" DAY

Selected Halachos For Chodesh Nisan (3)

Understanding Sefiras Haomer. Now that Chag HaPesach is behind us, we begin a new "season" of spiritual growth. When our forefathers left Mitzrayim, they knew they would be receiving the Torah after seven weeks (1). They used this time as preparatory weeks to cleanse themselves of any undesirable contamination they attracted from living in Egypt for 210 years. Additionally, they needed to acquire many positive middos to be suitable recipients of this holy gift on Har Sinai. They succeeded in changing themselves, and from then on, the season of Sefiras Haomer is graced with the potential and ability for each and every Jew to do the same in his/her specific sphere of growth (2). Ladders of Growth. There are two distinct "Ladders" with finite steps that Klal Yisrael are climbing at this time:

1) Ladder 1. The Sages of Kabbalah give an exact breakdown of the 7 sections of the "ladder," corresponding to the 7 weeks of Sefirah that we count, plus the forty-nine rungs of the "ladder" corresponding to the 49 days we count. The 7 sections are בין הריחיים – תבלין מדה היומי – בבא מציעא סב.

The Gemara states: If 2 people are traveling in an area where there is no water and only one of them has water. If they both share this water, it will not be enough to last until they reach a water supply and they will both die. But if only the owner drinks the water, he will make it but not his companion. says better they should share it and both die, rather than one should witness his companions death. and in this case, the owner may keep his water for himself. explains that we see from this case that holds when it comes to killing him. there is no heter of ברוך and רבי ברוך and both people are equal even if you are not doing a מעשה of killing him. The Gemara explains that one is מרחיב holds that one is מרחיב to be מרחיב to save his friends life, even if he isn't the cause of the death. As long as one can prevent the death of someone else, he must do so, even at the cost of his own life. Actually, in our case, the owner of the water is מרחיב to give it all away, the only issue is, once he gives it to his friend, his friend now has the same חיוב to save the owner and must give it back to him. Consequently, says they should share it even if it means they will both not make it. The פטורא says according to פטורא if one of the travelers was a קטן, if one of the travelers was a קטן, he would have to give his water to him, since that would save the קטן because the קטן has no חיוב to give it back.

What you yourself don't like, do not do unto others. The Gemara tells a story where the הלל told a potential רבי, גר לחברך לא תעביד. "ואהבת לרעך כמוך" the pasuk of מהרש"א says מרש"א the pasuk of לא תעביד in the negative term of לא תעביד, instead of saying Love your חבר like yourself, which is in the positive form? He answers that הלל holds that ואהבת לרעך means love your fellow Yid, but is only referring to not being oiver the תעשה of לא תעביד. therefore הלל translated it as, do not do unto others. However, regarding doing positive טובה to someone else we say קודמים and the pasuk of ואהבת לרעך is not referring to that.

says that although one is מרחיב to save his friend whenever possible, one may not put himself in סכנה in order to do so, because we pasken חייב him you will be exposing yourself to a ספק. Even if a person is in a סכנה or ראי סכנה, but in order to attempt to save him you will be exposing yourself to a ספק. If there really is if there really is a ספק then his חיוב is it, should make every effort to do so. He brings our Gemara and says that if regarding גופות we say עסקי גופות and whoever the הפקר like doing mitzvos, we say חייב קודמים.

The Rebbe, R' Heschel of Krakow ז"ל (Chanukas HaTorah) would say:

'A woman and her sister you may not take (marry).' Why does he say the pasuk employ an ambiguous expression when it could have simply stated, 'Do not take your wife's sister'? To remind us that Yaakov Avinu married Leah first, even though she was the sister of Rochel, the woman he really wished to marry. We are warned against this and if one took 'אשה' a woman against his will, 'אחותה לא תקח' - do not marry her sister, even if she is more beloved."

A Wise Man would say: "For every minute you are angry you lose 60 seconds of happiness."

מעשה אבות ... סימן לבנים

איש איש מבית ישראל אשר ישחט שור או כשב או עז במחנה או אשר ישחט מחוץ למחנה ... (ז-ז)

The posuk refers to one who “slaughters outside the camp.” Homiletically, if a person speaks negatively of others, destroying his character and “slaughtering” the reputation and honor of another person, he will have to answer for this misdeed.

Anyone who has ever waited in the outer room for his turn to speak to the Gerrer Rebbe, R’ Pinchos Menachem Alter זט”ל, could not help but feel the tangible fear gripping each waiting chassid. It was almost possible to cut the tension in the room with a knife! He knew that he was about to encounter greatness. Yet, upon watching each person exit the Pnei Menachem’s room, it was clear that his face was completely transformed. The fear had been replaced by relief, a smile, which displayed a combination of purity and love. Only someone who experienced this transformation could understand it.

One time, a bachur who wasn’t even a Gerrer chassid, was so brokenhearted that he felt compelled to unburden himself and ask for a beracha from the Pnei Menachem. It was his father’s medical condition that brought him to the Rebbe’s door. For a number of weeks his father had been suffering terrible pain. Finally, after a whole battery of tests, the diagnosis had come back ... and it wasn’t good. His father was suffering from a very serious and bitter illness. The experts said that his only hope was to travel out of the country to a world-renowned medical center where there was a small chance that they would be able to help him. Of course, the darkness in the house and the depression was palpable.

The bachur walked into the Pnei Menachem’s room, but upon looking at the holy countenance of the Rebbe, he simply lost his ability to speak. “I couldn’t get the words out of my mouth. His face seemed to be burning with a holy fire. I thought I was standing in front of a malach, a celestial angel,” said the bachur. “He, however, looked straight at me with eyes full of compassion, peering deep into my heart and into my soul, and he prodded me to share my feelings with him. Finally, I found my voice and told him the whole story. Gently, he asked me, ‘What do they speak about in your house at the table?’ Unsure how to reply, I stood there quietly. The Rebbe prodded, gently, sympathetically. ‘Do you at times talk about other people?’ I nodded my head. It was true and I didn’t have the nerve to actually admit it outright to the Rebbe. The Pnei Menachem wasn’t finished, ‘Are there times when you place a person on the ‘operating table’ and talk about him as if he were a specimen undergoing an operation?’ I again nodded, clearly acknowledging that this was the unfortunate situation in our house.

“The Rebbe reached out, took hold of my hand and said, ‘The rule is that he who says good things about others brings upon himself a Heavenly outpouring of good. He who talks negatively of others can bring upon himself terrible difficulties. Tell your father that no evil will befall the person who refrains from speaking ill of another...’

“I left the Pnei Menachem’s room with renewed hope and optimism. The knowledge that the Rebbe had just endowed me with was a wondrous piece of advice, a conduit for the miraculous yeshuah that we so desperately needed. I returned home armed with the knowledge that I - my entire family - had work to do. I fulfilled the words of Chazal that teach that a person cannot be quiet when he hears his father or mother engaged in sinful speech. The next time, such words were spoken, I told my father about my visit to the Rebbe and everything that he had said. Our entire family immediately accepted to strengthen themselves in this area. My father flew out of the country for treatments and miraculously returned a healthy man!

“A while later, when my father had already regained his strength, I happened to be walking with him on the street where the Pnei Menachem lived, and suddenly I saw the Rebbe walking a bit further down the street. We both ran to him and I introduced my father to the Rebbe, while expressing my deepest thanks for his advice which had certainly brought the yeshuah. Smiling, the Rebbe said simply, ‘Remember the kabbalah that you made. You must maintain it!’

“From that time on, the entire atmosphere in our home underwent a transformation. The words of the Rebbe, ‘He who says good things about others brings upon himself a Heavenly outpouring of good’ became our slogan for life - a healthy life!”

תורת הצבי על הפטרות A PENETRATING ANALYSIS OF THE WEEKLY HAFTORAH BY AN UNEQUALLED HISTORIAN

Amos HaNavi declares that Hashem will “give the order to shake the House of Israel ... as one shakes sand in a sieve ...” Chazal explain that the Nation had fallen so far that incredibly, Hashem was ready to destroy them entirely. However, the Almighty remembered His promise to never eradicate the Jewish people and decided to “shake” them instead. However, if the Jews had fallen to such a low level that Hashem was contemplating their utter destruction r”l, how would a little “shake” convince them to change?

Rashi adds to the words of Amos HaNavi that after the sifting process is complete and the fine bran falls out, there remains the coarse bran which is too large to exit through the small holes of a sieve. Thus, a person is forced to shake the the sieve with all his might to break up the larger pieces so that they may fall through.

It is possible to expound on the words of Rashi to answer our question. Chazal say, “Shuva Yisroel ad Hashem Elokecha” - every single Jew has the ability to return to Hashem, period. Although it may be true that Klal Yisroel had become so steeped in sin, and all hope seemed lost, deep down in the heart of a Jew is his insatiable desire to get close to the Almighty, and Hashem knows that. That desire - no matter how buried it is - can always be brought back up.

Ultimately, no amount of repeated attempts by the Neviim to arouse the nation to teshuva can compare to a good and thorough “shaking” from Hakadosh Baruch Hu!

CONCEPTS IN AVODAS HALEV FROM THE FAMILY OF R' CHAIM YOSEF KOPFMAN זט”ל

On Yom Kippur, Klal Yisroel is commanded to bring two goats; one for Hashem and one to be sent לעזאזל, thrown down the jagged mountain, shattering into pieces. The posuk tells us that with this act, we are zoche to receive atonement for our sins. Many ask and wish to comprehend: How is this most baffling avoda understood?

I once heard the following machshava which offers a different perspective on the symbolism of this pair of korbanos. The Gemara in Yoma says that these two animals must be identical as in height, appearance, and value. What does this signify? These two similar animals symbolize two types of people that come into this world exactly the same. One of them thinks: “Why should I work hard, applying myself to Torah and Avodas Hashem, and live a strained life? Let me enjoy myself and have a good time instead.” The other fellow understands how crucial and beneficial it is to follow the Torah way of life, although it may not be the easiest way. He is represented by the שעיר לה'. They arrive together, and the שעיר לה' is chosen by a lottery, and is slated to be slaughtered. The other one is still having a grand old time, as he is alive and well. It appears to him that he has chosen well. Suddenly, he is taken out to the desert and cast down the steep cliff, smashing his way to smithereens. His ultimate sentence is well-deserved. Now, let us return to the first one. His blood goes all the way into the Kodesh hakodoshim, the holiest of holies, and thus reaps his just reward for his sacrifices in life. So while it may have seemed that the לעזאזל was living it up, הרוכז סופו על תחילתו. He’s ultimately the one that chose well, and led the ideal life.

The posuk later in the parsha says “שמרתם את חקתי ... אשר יעשה האדם וחי בהם”. As we just illustrated, keeping Torah u'mitzvos is the real בהם וחי. Coming on the heels of חרותנו and leading up to Matan Torah this timely message should echo through the ages for all to follow. May we be zoche to convey these all-important principles to the next generation!

משל למה הדבר דומה

אחרי מות שני בני אהרן בקרבנתם לפני ה' וימתו ... (טז-טז)

משל: A man once shared his troubles with R’ Shlomo Zalman Auerbach זט”ל. He went on and on to explain his extreme situation and why his case is so much more excruciating than other people’s. R’ Shlomo Zalman assured him that despite his problems, happiness was within his reach. The man protested, claiming that it was impossible for someone enduring the suffering he was going through, to be happy. It was simply too difficult for him to see the good.

R’ Shlomo Zalman, his usual, soft and caring look on his face, said in a clear unequivocal voice: “I know someone who, after an operation, is deaf in one ear. He is also a widower, r”l. He spent most of his life living in poverty. Three of his children are childless. And yet, despite all his tribulations, he is always cheerful and smiling.”

The man was taken aback. “He is genuinely happy?” he asked. “That sounds like a lot. Who is this man? How can he be happy after suffering so much?”

R’ Shlomo Zalman looked the man in the eye and said, “That man is me! Happiness is within your reach if you want it to be - no matter the difficulty of the situation!”

משל: When Aharon lost his two older sons, considered to be two of the most righteous tzaddikim of that generation, the Torah tells us he accepted the will of Hashem and did not complain. Chazal tell us in the beginning of Pirkei Avos, “Aharon Hakohen loved mankind and drew them close to the Torah.” Perhaps one of the special traits that helped him achieve this extraordinary accomplishment was his ability to show people a soft, loving face despite his tribulations. This drew people close to him and thus closer to Torah.

EDITORIAL AND INSIGHTS ON MIDDOS TOVOS FROM THE WELLSPRINGS OF R' GUTTMAN - RAMAT SHLOMO

דרגה יתירה

There are many explanations given by the meforshim why Nadav and Avihu died. Some say it was because they were condescending to Moshe and Aharon, some say they brought an “Aish Zara” and others say it was because they drank wine.

The Daas Zekeinim explains that the reason they died was because they never got married, and the reason they never got married was because they didn’t think anyone was good enough for them! They said, “Our father’s brother is the King, our father is the Kohen Gadol, our mother’s brother is the Nasi, we are the assistant Kohanim; is there any woman good enough for us?” Daas Zekeinim quotes the posuk (Tehillim 78-63): “בחוריו אכלה אש ובתולתיו לא הוללו”, referring to the sons of Aharon who were consumed by fire and refused to marry young beautiful eligible maidens because they didn’t meet their qualifications.

We all hear about the “Shidduch Crisis” in our generation, but many seem to feel that that what we have is really a “Bitachon Crisis”! Don’t people realize that shidduchim are all Min Hashamayim? Your hishtadlus is not pushing away the right one! But how often do people say no to many wonderful proposals because their nose is up in the air and “es past nisht” for them to make such a shidduch? What will people say if WE take such a family? Shidduchim become status symbols rather than a boy or a girl with whom one can build a beautiful Jewish home.

The Steipler, R’ Yaakov Yisrael Kanievsky זט”ל, compares finding a shidduch to picking an esrog. If you still have plenty of time before Yom Tov you can be more selective and find the perfect specimen. But if it’s almost Sukkos and time is short, you take what is before you. When one is starting shidduchim, they might be a bit selective but if a girl or boy is starting to get older, then go with what Hashem is sending you! Don’t be too prideful or overthink things! May we all have the clarity and humility to recognize the right one when Hashem sends it and may everyone find his/her richtiger zivug b’ka
